

Sawasdee ka at the Thaigarden

We are happy to welcome you today.

We bring you closer to a piece of Asian culture in our Thai garden!

Thai cuisine was originally influenced by water. Water animals and water plants were on the menu. Through culinary influences, especially from China, India and Europe, an independent national cuisine developed beginning in the 17th century. Typical Thai cuisine combines all flavours: bitter, sweet, sour, spicy and salty. The dishes are either fried, steamed, braised or grilled. The elaborate fruit and vegetable carvings originated in the royal courts. It is an ancient Thai art form called Kae Sa Luk, which dates back to ancient Siam and is still celebrated today.

Our three chefs grew up in different places in Thailand. Jenni and Nicha come from Khon-Kaen and Buri ram in the north-east of Thailand and Ampanpan from the big city of Bangkok. They all bring their ideas and family recipes to the Riverside kitchen to prepare an authentic and finde dish for you.
